BELL ROCK.

The farmers are busy at their fall plowing.

Agents of the Daly Tea Company called on their old friends here last week.

Miss Carmelia Yorke, student of Belleville Business College, spent Thanksgiving at her home here.

Mrs. B. F. Revell left to-day for Parry Sound to attend the funeral of her father, the late Mortimer Meeks.

Visitors: Mrs. W. Drew, Long Lake, at G. M. Sanborn's; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Timmons, Centreville, at John Timmon's; Miss Abrams, Verona, at C. D. Yorke's; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Phippen, Sydenham, at H. C. Young's; Rev. C. W. Crane, Verona, and C. G. Yotke, Queen's, Kingston, at J. Pomeroy's.

Telling of the progress made in combating the terrible 20th century plague—Consumption.

Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population in Canada in the past few years, it is more than gratifying to be able to record that the fight which the National Sanitarium Association are putting up against the "white plague"—consumption—is proving a winning one.

Prior to 1896 deaths from Consumption were on the increase every year. In 1910, despite the greater number of citizens, the figures in Ontario alone showed a decrease of 1118 over those of ten years ago. Isn't this splendid testimony to the noble work going on?

Maybe you haven't a father, mother, sister or dear friend of your own afflicted, but wouldn't it feel good to help some poor soul in the throes of the dread disease to get back into the wage-earning class—to return cured to wife and loved ones?

Our proud boast is that no needy Consumptive has ever been refused admittance to our Free Institutions at Weston and Muskoka because of poverty. But the good work cannot expand without your kindly sympathy and material help.

The need is urgent. If you are blessed with that greatest of all blessings, good health, think of your needy suffering brother and sister.

Send along your mite, however humble, to Mr. W. J. GAGE, Chairman of the Executive Committee; or to Mr. R. DUNBAR, Sec. Treas., 347 King West, Toronto.

Every penny you send goes to help.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,
Nov. 4th, 1912.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor W. T. Waller in the chair.

Present — Reeve Alexander, and Councillors Denison, Osborne and Dickinson.

The minutes of the last regular session were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from the Seymour Power Co. in reference to replacing a pole on Dundas with either an iron or cement one. The company stated they intended in the course of a week or so to remove the pole complained of, as it was only a temporary fixture. Communication filed.

A communication was read from Mr. Wright, the engineer, stating that the Ontario Bridge Co. were entitled to the sum of $1100.00 for material for roofing over sedimentation tank at the disposals works, and that the company's account, at present, was correct.

Moved by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Simpson, that the communication be filed, and the account paid, and charged to the disposals works account. Carried.

Coun. Madill entered and took his seat.

A communication was read from the city of Toronto asking the council to send representatives to that city to attend a convention called for the purpose of discussing the question of the care of mental deficient children in the schools of the province. Filed.

A communication was read from E. W. Stickney, of the Percival Plow Co., Merrickville in reference to locating their works at Napanee. The letter stated the company would be expecting something in the way of inducements when they changed their location. The inducements expected would be along the line of a loan, a bonus, or the selling of more stock to compensate the company for sacrifice of property, etc., at present location.

Messrs. Irvine Vanalstine and A. D. Snider petitioned the council, on behalf of the citizens of South Napanee, for a grant of $50.00 to aid in the repairing of the cable bridge crossing the river at the foot of the falls.

Messrs. Vanalstine and Snider addressed the council and stated that the township of North Fredericksburgh has contributed the sum of $50.00 and hoped that the town council would contribute a like amount.

The town had previously made two grants towards this bridge. Whatever balance was needed to make the necessary repairs it was expected the citizens benefited by this bridge would put up.

The matter was referred to the town solicitor for an opinion as to whether it was legal for the council to grant the request of the petitioners.

Mr. Wm. O'Hare and other citizens in the vicinity of the Belleville road petitioned the council for an electric light at the corner of Graham street and the Belleville road.

HARD CAMPAIGN

Taft, Roosevelt and Will to the Polls To-day

Fight For the Election of a President and For Federal and State Is Now in the Hands of Voters and All Leaders Claim—Women's Vote Will Be Important Factor.

New York, Nov. 5.—The most Presidential fight of recent came to an end last night, leading candidates for the chief office continuing their appeal to voters almost to moment. President Taft, from his train in Ohio, on to Cincinnati; Col. Roosevelt, ing voters at Long Island point to Oyster Bay, and Governor addressing meetings at Paterson, Passaic, N.J., gave to the chief of the long campaign a touch of personal activity that emphasized interest in to-day's balloting.

More than the Presidency is in the elections to-day. The can forces have concentrated for its in doubtful states, to an overturning of local organs or a capture of the Legislature heretofore safely Republican. The Democrats have made a bold assault upon a number to control the Legislatures, the majority in the United States may be swung to the Democratic column. Against Republican tions that the Senate will repudiate, the Democratic leaders yesterday claimed states to give them the Senate greatly swell their majority House of Representatives, who captured in 1910.

Few American campaigns through a longer period of controversy. The fight for the presidency, to terminate at the boxes to-day, was under way in February, and has scarcely since that time. Out of the who were active candidates for presidential nominations early in the year, three candidates represent three parties whose relative is still a matter of conjecture to solicit the voters support.

The influence of women in the campaign will probably be greater in any previous election. Editorial headquarters has had a bureau to appeal to workers, presided over by women known in public and social circles in the six western states where will vote, Wyoming, Utah, California, Idaho and Washington. Their ballots will be an important factor in the results. In five other states, Arizona, Michigan, Kansas, and Wisconsin, the right of women to vote will be an issue at the polls.

Fair weather is predicted for the majority of states. The uncertainty caused by the third party is more than ordinarily urgent a party managers to all voters to the polls, and the local caused by fights for state control of state machinery, a record vote in almost all of the country, and a popular vote of huge proportions.

Manchester Speech Still Stirrs.

London, Nov. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable).—Lord Roberts' speech at Manchester, which directly declared that Germany would strike England the moment she was fully prepared, continues to attract undiminished comment. Ever since its delivery a fortnight ago, The Mail has published a summary of the speech daily.

The International Arbitration League, however, has carried a resolution denouncing the speech and declaring that Roberts speaks only for "a small section of fanatical militarists, whose violent language measures their failure to place the yoke of conscription on the shoulders of the British people."

A mustering of the German colony of Manchester Saturday condemned the speech, and begging friends in Germany to understand that the soldier's words did not reflect the opinion of the great majority of Englishmen.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 5.—Letters which the Government charged showed that Frank C. Webb of New York, wrote to J. J. McNamara about sending Ortie E. McManigal to New York and Boston to blow up work there, were read at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

A letter from Webb was quoted as showing that M. J. Young of Boston was anxious to have "jobs" done in Boston in the spring of 1909, and in reply McNamara wrote, "I don't know whether my friend will be able to get down your way. Find out if the deal could be pulled off. I'll attend to the rest of it, so no one will know anything about it as to time." The Government asserted these letters were referred to Frank M. Ryan, president of the Ironworkers' Union, and that Herbert S. Hockin was sent to Chicago to prepare McManigal for the eastern trips. McManigal reported that an opera house under construction in Boston, and a viaduct in Hoboken, N.J., were blown up in March, 1909.

POWERS STAND ALOOF

France, Britain and Russia Will Not Intervene.

Premier Poincare Thinks an Armistice Would Give Turks an Unfair Advantage and Presses His Policy of Disinterestedness—Germany, Austria and Italy Reject Scheme—Turkey Says She Is Not Beaten.

Paris, Nov. 5.—The French attitude to the Turkish appeal for mediation is shared by England and Russia. Turkey's proposals were as follows:

First—That the powers offer and, if need be, enforce an armistice on the belligerents.

Second—That the powers profit by the armistice to invite the belligerents to make known their peace terms, and if necessary harmonize the conflicting terms of the belligerents.

In refusing to act, Premier Poincare declared that France was unable to accept the suggestion about an armistice without furnishing to the Balkan allies guarantees relative to the conditions of peace. An armistice, he said, would check the advance of the allies at the height of their victories, and give the Turks time to reorganize and strengthen their armies.

Premier Poincare's proposals to the powers are:

First—Recognition by the powers of political and administrative changes in the territory occupied by the troops of the allies.

Second—Retention of the Sultan's sovereignty at Constantinople and the region round the capital.

Third—The summoning of a European conference in which the Balkan nations shall participate.

Rejected by Three Powers.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The Turkish ambassador presented to the Foreign Office yesterday afternoon a communication from his Government asking the powers' good offices to bring about an armistice. Germany immediately put itself into communication with the other five powers with a view to carrying out the request.

The reply of Germany, Austria and Italy to Premier Poincare's proposal has just been despatched. It rejects the proposed declaration of "disinterestedness."

Envoys Go to Russia.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 5.—The newspapers announce the arrival at Odessa of two representatives of the Turkish Foreign Office on a secret mission. They will interview the Russian Foreign Minister, M. Sazonoff, and subsequently go to Berlin and Vienna.

Advices from Odessa say that the Russian Black Sea fleet is cruising off the mouth of the Bosphorus, ostensibly with the object of protecting Russian subjects in Constantinople.

Will Keep Up Fight.

London, Nov. 5.—The prospect that a considerable portion of the defeated Turkish army will be able to re-form behind the lines of Tchatalja, the last of the fortifications before Constantinople, is not altogether excluded, but whether the Turks will be able to maintain there any serious resistance to the Bulgarians is a question which permits of doubt.

In the struggle with the allies the Turks lost more than half their artillery. In fact the Servians alone claim to have captured no less than 300 guns. This will certainly militate against any prolonged stand at Tcha-

New Evidence in Ellis Case.

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 5.—New evidence may be disclosed in the case of Arthur A. Ellis, now under the death sentence in the county jail here, through Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, in whose constituency the convicted man lived, and the shooting of Lewis Porter, for whose murder he is under sentence of death, took place. It is understood that a report has come to the Minister that Ellis had sought to marry Edith Porter, the daughter of his dead wife, before their marriage, and the girl, whom the defence tried to show at the trial, had written to Ellis to tell him of the threats of the Porters against him. This intention is said to have brought from Lew Porter direct and definite threats against the life of Ellis. At the time of the trial Ellis told a reporter of hearing that such had been made, but as he had been unable to locate the man who had given him this information, this was not put in evidence at the trial. It is understood that this report may form the basis of an application for a new trial by Ellis' counsel.

Still After McMicken.

Winnipeg, Nov. 5.—The appeal court yesterday granted leave to W. H. Trueman, appearing on behalf of Hugh McKenzie and R. H. McDonald, to lay information against Alex. McMicken, provincial police magistrate, for alleged misdemeanors in connection with the trial of two election impersonators arrested in Macdonald Oct. 12 at the instigation of the Opposition. McMicken heard the cases in private before the hour set for hearing and the court expressed no opinion on the merits of the question.

May Exhume Body.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—That it may be necessary to exhume the body of Private John Eannatyne of the 48th Highlanders, which was laid to rest with so great pomp and ceremony, was the startling statement made at the continuation of the wreck inquest by Chief Coroner Arthur Jukes Johnson at the morgue last night. This arises from the serious illness of J. J. Butler, foreman of the jury empaneled to hear the evidence, who lies at his home in a dangerous condition. It may be necessary to empanel a new jury and view the body again.

In a circular note to the Turkish ambassadors abroad the Turkish Gov- ernment maintains that, although em- barrassing, the position of affairs is not desperate, and declares that when the allies had completed their mobi- lization Turkey had barely begun hers. The note insists that Turkey is still able to maintain prolonged warfare.

Although fighting is still proceeding on the Tchorlu-Serai line and cor- respondents are sending reports of Bul- garian and Turkish successes in that neighborhood, according to which side they draw inspiration from, the official announcement from Constanti- nople that the Turks are withdrawing to the Tchatalja line of forts is not to be doubted, and it is evidence that this fighting is merely an extensive rear-guard action to cover the move- ment of the Turks towards Constanti- nople.

The fall of Adrianople is expected daily. The occupation of Buk, on the railway between Soloniki and Kuleli Burgas, is the last link of the chain wholly cutting off the Turkish armies which have been fighting the great battles in the east from the scattered forces in the heart of the country and to the west.

Comparative order is still maintain- ed in Constantinople and Saloniki, but apparently the nervousness felt in Europe over possible outbreaks and disorders is equally shared by the au- thorities in Turkey. In Constantinople already the Government is seizing great supplies for the army, and the likelihood of famine prices for food will add to the Government's difficul- ties. The anxiety has been partly re- lieved by the arrival of European war ships. Others are on the way and are expected to pass through the Darde- nelles to-day.

It is considered not unlikely that the fear of serious outbreaks in Con- stantinople may urge the powers to use diplomatic pressure to bring about peace at the earliest moment.

The Greeks pursued and killed many of them.

MURDER POSSIBLE.

John Grindall Struck Before Falling Into Toronto Bay.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—Evidence of foul play submitted last night at the in- quest into the death of John Grin- dall, 27 Herrick street, the man whose body was found in the bay last Satur- day, led Coroner Adam Lynd to ad- journ the inquest for a week.

Dr. Wigham, who performed the post mortem examination, gave as- phyxiation from drowning as the cause of death, but at the same time he stated that he had found a bump as large as a silver dollar on the back of the man's head toward the right, and a skin scrape across the forehead. On being questioned, he said that the scalp wound on the back of the head could easily have been caused by a blow from a club. In his opinion, the man was alive when he entered the water.

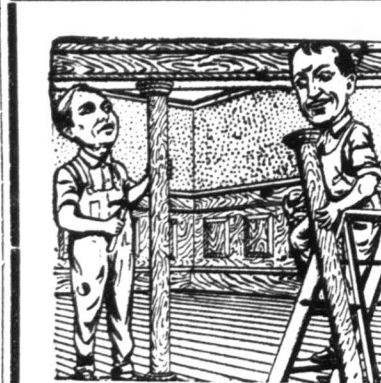

Constable Gordon Morris, who took the body from the bay after the boys who found it had informed the po- lice, said that he noticed one peculiar thing when he reached the body. The man's coat was pulled over his head and shoulders with the lining and seams showing. In answer to a question, he said the man would be almost powerless if his coat were pulled over his head in the manner in which he found it.

Sidney Grindall, a brother of the dead man, said that it was a mystery to him how his brother came to be found in the east end of the city, as he lived in the west end and worked on Davenport road. On Tuesday morning the dead man left for work with a lunch in his pocket, and was never seen alive afterwards by any of the family.

Why Have "Nerves?"

This is the reason why women have "nerves." When thoughts begin to grow cloudy and uncertain, impulses lag and the warnings of pain and distress are sent like flying messages throughout limbs and frame, straightway, nine times in ten, a woman will lay the cause of the trouble to some defect at the point where she first felt it. Is it a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation of the delicate special organs of the sex should be treated steadily and systematically.

Dr. Pierce, during a long period of practice, found that a prescription made from medicinal extracts of native roots, without the use of alcohol, relieved over 90 per cent. of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in form of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that would make it easily procurable, and it can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

MRS. LILA B. HAWKINS, of Zions, Va., writes: "I had been failing in health for two years—most of the time was not able to attend to my household duties. Female weakness was my trouble and I was getting very bad but, thanks to Doctor Pierce's medicines, I am well and strong again. I took only three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and used the 'Lotion Tablets.' I have nothing but praise for Doctor Pierce's wonderful medicines."

FRENCH PRETENDERS.

Proposal to Repeal Exclusion Law and Allow Them to Live In France.

A movement has been started to repeal the law passed 26 years ago which excludes from France the descendants of families who have reigned in that country or who have pretended to the throne. A bill of repeal has been introduced in the Chamber of Deputies. Its author has specially in view the case of Prince Victor Napoleon, who, he says, has expressly recognized the republic and has shown his faith in the elective principle and in a republican form of government. Prince Victor issued a manifesto to his followers this spring in which he declared: "Shake hands loyally with all Frenchmen of every opinion who put in the first place respect for the national will and the safety of the fatherland." On the other hand opponents of the repeal recall the fact that Louis Napoleon, on his inauguration as President, in 1848, swore fidelity to the existing institutions. He rendered himself absolute in December, 1851, and the following year assumed the title of Emperor.

Prince Victor is a grandson of Jerome, that brother of the great Emperor who was, for a time, King of Westphalia, and who repudiated his early marriage with Betty Patterson of Baltimore. He is styled by his followers Napoleon the fifth, the fourth of the name being the Prince Imperial who was killed in Zululand in 1879. His prestige was increased considerably by his marriage to Clementine, youngest daughter of the late King Leopold of Belgium, and a great-granddaughter of Louis Philippe, the "Citizen King."

Victor is a most commonplace pretender. He is the son of Plon-Plon, who was a prominent figure in the days of his cousin, Napoleon the Third. His brother, Prince Louis, an officer of the Russian army, living mostly in Paris, is more presentable and would suit the French character and temperament far better than the fat dog-faced, heavy moustached man who seldom finds his tongue, and whose recent feat of hearty laughter at a whispered remark of his wife's at the Brussels race course was flashed throughout the world as an unheard-of happening. He would make as sorry a figure on horseback as did Napoleon the Third, when his cheeks were rouged before the battle of Sedan. His galvanized activity does not disturb the repose of the republic. A fat, philosophical man of 50, comfort-

TO KEEP OLD CONTRACT.

Hudson Bay Co. Will Give Connaught Four Skins.

It has been decided that when the Duke of Connaught visits Northern Canada, which he is expected to do shortly, he is to be presented with the furs of two elk and two black beavers by the Hudson Bay Co., says The Toronto Star Weekly in a recent article. Such presentation, however, will not be in the nature of a gift, but will be made in accordance with a very curious provision contained in the charter of incorporation of the 2nd May, 1670, which the merchant adventurers of London prayed for from King Charles II., and which that monarch granted to his cousin, Prince Rupert, and seventeen other gentlemen, securing to them the "sole trade and commerce of all those seas, straits, bays, rivers, lakes, and creeks, lying within the entrance of the straits called Hudson Straits." The clause in the charter making obligatory on the Hudson Bay Co. the presentation to the heirs and successors of the "Merry Monarch" of two elk and to black beavers reads as follows:

"We do, by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, make, create, and constitute the said Governor and Company for the time being, and their successors, the true and absolute lords and proprietors of the same territory, limits, and places, and of all other premises, saving always the faith, allegiance, and sovereign dominion due to us, our heirs and successors, for the same to have, hold, possess, and enjoy the said territory, limits and places, . . . to the said Governor and Company, and their successors for ever to be holden of us, our heirs and successors, as of our manor at East Greenwich, in our County of Kent, in free and common socage, and not in capite or by knight's service, yielding and paying yearly to us, our heirs and successors, for the same two elk and two black beavers, whensoever and as often as we, our heirs and successors, shall happen to enter into the said countries, territories, and regions hereby granted."

It may, perhaps, be open to doubt whether, in strict law, his royal highness, the present Governor-General, can be said to be comprised in the words "heirs and successors" before mentioned, as it is, at least, arguable that that expression means the reigning monarch for the time being. However, the Hudson Bay Co. have decided that the words are capable of in-

PRESS COMMENTS.

Yorkton Times—Nothing speaks better for a rural community than a nice lawn in the school yard and trees growing. Mistakes were made by the pioneers in the size of the school grounds; in nearly all cases they are too small.

St. Thomas Journal—Why should we not decide upon a British standard of efficiency as near as possible to that required in Ontario, and say that teachers holding certificates under the standard shall be eligible for Ontario licenses to teach?

Guelph Mercury—The men who prate on loyalty, and cry to heaven of their love of British fair play, taking the bread and butter from an office-holder, whose crime is that he was appointed by the Laurier Government! Ye gods, what are we coming to.

Sydney Record—The hunt for patronage and place has become a master passion with the Tories. They are inexorable, unbending. In the instance of the Montreal Harbor Board they have incontestably shown that party expediency means more to them than the country's best interests.

Toronto Globe—Liberalism can have no part or lot with Bourassa in his anti-British attitude. The Tories made an alliance with him a year ago, and he was hailed as one of the party's leaders at the Sudbury meeting. He and Borden are still at one in this, that neither proposes to train a single Canadian to take part in naval defence.

Port Arthur Chronicle—Since the commission is to be converted into a political machine. Major Stephens has taken the only course open to him: that of refusing to continue to act. He has more honor in his resignation than he would have if he had by continuing a member of the board given his consent to what was about to take place.

Ottawa Journal—But at least the conclusions arrived at by a majority of expert economists regarding the causes of the high cost of living justify an investigation into cold-storage conditions, both from the standpoint of cold-storage proprietors placed under suspicion of cruel manipulation, and that of the public, menaced by the opportunities presented to wholesalers by the present system.

Calgary Alberian—All honor to the French-Canadian voter! Sir Rodolphe Forget tried to bribe him with the promise of a railway if he would elect a Government supporter in the riding of Richelieu. He resisted. How many ridings in Ontario, or even in western Canada would resist the temptation? But what have we to say for a Government or a member of Parliament that openly offers a bribe of that kind?

Vancouver Sun—In the minds of the ministers there is evidently no thought of providing protection for our coast cities and harbors. They are wilfully playing on the loyalty of the people to the mother country to put through a measure which those who understand the situation best know will not greatly advantage Great Britain and will leave Canada open to attack in the event of the Empire being involved in war.

The other pretender to the throne of France, the Duke of Orleans, is one of the most royal looking men in Europe. Full-faced, bearded, broad-chested, he is fond of money, likes adventure and loves the ladies. He is descended from Philippe Egalite, who voted in the convention for death of Louis XVI. He has, however, the unpleasant and unfortunate habit of putting his foot in it, whenever he opens his mouth, and recently was given a hint by King George to end his stay in England on account of some impertinent and decidedly ungrateful strictures on the English people. He does not keep the French authorities awake at night, although he has lavished the fortunes of many of his devoted women followers on the attempted attainment of his ambition.

Eskimo Women's Work.

In a zone where the diet is largely meat and the meat is eaten raw cooking forms no great part of woman's work. But, though she gets out of the cooking by this simple expedient, the Eskimo woman has work to do. When her husband comes back from the hunt it is her business to scrape and prepare the skins of the animals he has killed and out of these skins make the family supply of boots. The flesh she cuts up for drying. True to the Indian conception of the eternal fitness of things, the boys play and gambol about until they are old enough to go to the hunt with their fathers, but the girls, while still very young, go to work, helping their mothers.

words "heirs and successors" were mentioned, as it is, at least, arguable that that expression means the reigning monarch for the time being. However, the Hudson Bay Co. have decided that the words are capable of including the members of the royal family generally, and have decided so to construe them on the occasion of the duke's visit—which will probably be the first time that the interesting ceremony has been performed, although the charter was granted nearly two hundred and fifty years ago. The connection of the Hudson Bay Co. with the royal family is a notable one. The King's cousin Prince Rupert, was, we have seen, first governor of the company, while his brother, the Duke of York, afterwards James II., succeeded him in that office. But the King's interest in the company did not stop there. He was graciously pleased not merely to insert in the charter the provision as to the two elks and two black beavers, but also to accept stock in the company (of the kind which would nowadays be called "Promoters' stock") to the amount of three hundred pounds, which represented something like nine or ten thousand dollars of our present money. King Charles II. dearly loved money. He was ready to sell either his soul, or his country, or both, for that commodity. And one is rather surprised that he did not insist on more than three hundred pounds' worth of stock being issued to him as the price of his consent to the company's incorporation.

Canada, Maple Land.

Regarding the authorship of the patriotic verses beginning "Canada, Maple Land," Miss Janet Carnochan of Niagara-on-the-Lake writes to The Toronto News:

I first saw the lines in a Methodist S.S. paper edited by Rev. W. H. Withrow; he always picked up anything good (Canadian). I admired it so that I cut it out and used it in my "Niagara 100 years ago," written I think in 1890 and published by the Lundy's Lane Historical Society in 1892. I heard Col. Denison recite it very effectively at a Lundy's Lane celebration afterwards. As it appeared in the S. S. papers the letters A. C. were signed. I often wondered who was the writer. Mrs. Curzon's initials were S. A. C. so I do not believe the lines were hers. I think I quoted them again in "Visitors to Niagara." I hope we may yet know who was the author of the fine stirring patriotic lines. It is to be hoped no one will claim them dishonestly.

A SOCIETY JOURNALIST

"MARMADUKE" OF TRUTH LAYS DOWN HIS PEN.

Charles Edward Jerningham, One of the Most Remarkable Figures In London Journalism, Decides After Twenty-Two Years of Ceaseless Activity to Retire—He Has Never Betrayed a Confidence.

"Earnestness, Energy, Enterprise—these are the Dreadnoughts that Eng-land most needs."

This is but one of the countless aphorisms of Mr. Charles Edward Jerningham, "Marmaduke," who knows more of Society—with a capital S—than anyone else in London, and who has just relinquished his writing for "Truth," after contributing to that journal for twenty-two unbroken years.

"Earnestness, Energy, Enterprise." Practice has been wedded to preach-ing in the case of "Marmaduke." For twenty-two years he has never missed penning his "Letter from the Link-man." In sickness or in health, the "copy" was never late, nor upon a single occasion was it even mislaid.

An interviewer called upon "Mar-maduke" on the eve of the latter's retirement, and found him ensconced in a quaint old house in a Kensington crescent that seems to reflect the mid-Victorian aristocracy that Mr. Jer-ningham loved so well.

Short in stature, grey, with kindly eyes and a brisk air, the philosopher of modern society carries his fifty-eight years as though they formed but a light load.

"Yes," he remarked, in answer to a question, "I am retiring from the literary staff of Truth because I am tired. The weekly letter has been a great strain. Seldom have I made fewer than forty pages of mere notes for each of the Letters, and I have frequently written and re-written the 'copy' a dozen or fourteen times."

"No, Truth was not my first adven-ture in journalism. I was once society editor of The Times, but my chief trouble in that direction was the insufficiency of work."

"I well remember my first day in The Times' office. I occupied an enormous room, and, having little to do, badly wanted to smoke. Before venturing to do so, however, for fear of transgressing, I sent for one 'Thomas,' a venerable, Bismarckian doorkeeper, who, in those days, was a kind of major-domo, commissionaire and janitor. Putting a sovereign in the man's palm, I asked: 'Thomas, may I smoke in here?' 'Thomas looked first at the sove-reign then at me; then he scratched his head in bewilderment. 'Well, sir,' he remarked solemnly at length, 'nobody has ever smoked in the office before, but—coming closer to me—if anybody says anything you can tell them that I gave you leave.'"

On one occasion at a dinner at which Mr. Jerningham was himself present, the conversation turned on the subject of Truth, and eventually to the "Letter from the Linkman." About that time "Marmaduke" had scored a particularly brilliant hit in making a portentous announcement, and this was naturally mentioned in the course of conversation.

Just then a gentleman sitting op-posite Mr. Jerningham joined in the discussion, and, with a most modest smile and perfect effrontery, announc-ed quite naively:

"I am 'Marmaduke,' you know."

It was in giving advance intelli-gence of impending events that Mr. Jerningham achieved his greatest successes. He knew everybody in society; he became familiar with the skeletons lurking in every cupboard in high life; he is a member of four-teen or fifteen clubs, and has the entree everywhere. He may indeed be referred to as a Sir George Lewis among journalists, for he has dis-closed no secrets, has given way to no indiscretions, and has made no en-emies.

"If you want to obtain news," said "Marmaduke," "you must first give it. Paradoxical as this may sound, it is invariably true. You advance a piece of information, and the receiv-er, if he is better informed, corrects you. It is sheer human nature to do so."

"A few days before the close of Queen Victoria's long and illustrious reign, I happened to meet a man who was particularly well informed at court, and who had been at Osborne quite recently. I asked him if it were true that the Queen was very ill, and, in reply, by way of amplification, he gave me the real facts."

"By a peculiar instinct—an instinct that has stood me in good stead all my life—I felt that the information was sound. The result was a para-graph in the following Wednesday's Truth—a dignified, reserved para-graph, pointing out the great age of her majesty, her worries in connection with the Boer war, and so on."

"I was thus the first journalist to suggest that the Queen was seriously ill, and before Truth had been on sale an hour I received a telephone message from the manager of a news-paper firm."

"What is this information worth?" he asked, without preface, meaning, to what extent was alarm felt at the state of the Queen's health."

"Misunderstanding him for a mo-ment, and thinking he referred to the monetary value of the intelligence, I replied, equally bluntly, but laugh-ingly: 'One hundred pounds!' Then I gave him the full knowledge I pos-sessed."

"That very day an evening journal came out with the first tragic an-nouncement that her majesty was very ill, and a few days later a mes-senger brought me a telegram con-taining the news that Victoria had passed away—and a cheque from the newspaper in question for $500."

Much of the information disseminated through Truth was inspired from high quarters, but not once did "Marmaduke" attack an individual.

ONE reason an optimist is so cheerful is that the difficulties of his trade keep him so busy in order to be happy that he doesn't have any time to grum-ble.

Thirty cents looks good to the man who hasn't had the price of a sand-wich for three days.

The man who really wants to break himself of the habit of buying expen-sive cigars should quit smoking.

There is apt to be quite a bit more nourishment in the lay of the hen than there is in the lay of the poet.

WOODROW WILSON STATES' PRESIDENT

Easily Defeated Roosevelt and Taft.

New York, Nov. 6.—The latest elections returns received add to Governor Wilson's pronounced victory. Later returns have made his triumph more decisive. He has been elected President of the United States by the overwhelming electoral majority of 299 votes. His plurality over Roosevelt, who it was predicted would give him such a close race, is 311 electoral votes, and over Taft 399 electoral votes.

The total electoral vote is given at a late hour as follows:

WILSON.....	415
ROOSEVELT.....	104
TAFT.....	12

Necessary for a choice, 286.

Wilson's estimated plurality vote is 1,328,550. In 1908 Taft won by 1,236,352.

Hallowe'en passed off very enjoyably here, most of the young people spending the evening at the home of Mr. C. Mellow, where some masqueraders entertained the crowd for a time, after which games and music were the order. Cake, coffee, candy, etc., were provided by the hostess and young ladies, to which ample justice was done. A few mischievous pranks were played in the neighborhood, but no damage was done.

ALBERT COLLEGE STRIKES A

They go Down to De the Hands of N. C.

The N. C. I. seniors added scalp to their string Saturday noon, when they took on Albert College seniors, of Bellefleur, despite the heavy ground, very close, and at all times thrills for the few supporters turned out to see the game.

The game was featured football all the time. The ground hindered the speed but they waded through things going. What the N. C. I. boys took it into to do something. Babcock, an A. C. rush and passed Cambridge. Ken fooled the men and gave Soby a chair took a long shot from the corner, by one of the prettiest seen this season, drove the Prof. McCutcheon, the All-keeper. This was the only game though the Bellefleur fought like demons to tie during the last half. They the blue and yellow goal time again only to have Sills save a sensational manner. He great game in goal, taking with ease, and driving them centre. Soby and Cambridge a great combination all the game and had things nearly liked it. Carter, Nesbit were at their best and uncorked pretty plays.

The back division was stricken up their forwards style, and anything that Babcock, Vrooman, Mills was what would be termed in. When Babcock jumped into the green and yellow forwards like ninepins and rolled about mud. McGreer was after him every minute, and though handicapped by a sore ankle, he played grand. For Belleville every man in position well, and they put up clean, sportsmanlike exhibition football. They were very never once attempted any tactics. Bunell and Dyer played football, the latter, although being an exceptionally fast. The A. C. centre played a w game during the last half and mainstay of the whole team goal-keeper and full backs had the dangerous shots and came to a nicety, and would have had a score had it not been for excellent shot.

Belleville took their defeat good sports they are and expect to come again some time. N. C. I. would do well to play upon their schedule for even for they would certainly give battle royal at every encounter they are a fine, manly bunch of The N. C. I. in general, the Posters Club in particular.

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—Mr. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—Mrs. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.

We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. When the lighthouse at Lobster Cove Head, Bonne Bay, Newfoundland, Mrs. W. Young sends experience of Zam-Buk. She says: "I suffered with eczema eleven years and to my great relief Zam-Buk has cured me. The disease started on my breast, spread until it extended over my neck. The itching and burning, especially when the affected were warm—was terrible; and when the eruption was scratched, it turned to bad sores caused great pain. I went to a doctor and tried various remedies, but seemed to get no benefit. I tried another doctor. Again I got no relief, so tried a third doctor, then a fourth.

"Seven years is a long time to suffer, and I had got used to the thought that I never would be cured, when I saw a report in the Family Herald, telling how beneficial Zam-Buk was in cases of skin disease. "I bought some Zam-Buk, and from the use of the very first box I saw going to do me good. I persevered with it, and the improvement in my condition was really wonderful. "It eased the irritation, stopped the pain, and the sores began to dry and disappear. In short, I found Zam-Buk all that was claimed for it within a very short time it worked a complete cure in my case. "Since that time I have recommended it for several other cases, and it has proved its wonderful merit.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—There was some demand from European sources for Manitoba spring wheat, and on the decline in prices in Winnipeg sales of several loads were made. On spot, No. 1 northern was offered at 97c, ex-store. A weaker feeling developed in the market for oats, and prices for spot supplies declined 1c to 1½c per bushel, and No. 2 Canadian western was offered for immediate shipment from Fort William at 44c, and extra No. 1 feed at 43c afloat here. The foreign demand for flour was dull, but a fair business continues to be done for domestic account. Demand for millfeed is good. Butter is fairly active, with a strong undertone. The demand from over the cable, and western buyers, for colored cheese was better, and some sales were made. Exports for the week were 60,172 boxes, as compared with 45,885 last year. Eggs active and firm. Dressed hogs declined 50c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 3 were 2000 cattle, 3000 sheep and lambs, 2800 hogs and 600 calves. The supplies on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1300 cattle, 2250 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for butchers' cattle, but the feeling was better, owing to the lighter receipts and the fact that the percentage of common stock was much smaller than it has been of late. Demand was good, and a fairly active trade was done. A few full loads of choice steers changed hands at $6.25, and picked lots at $6.50 to $6.75, while full loads of good cattle sold at $5.75 per 100 pounds. There was a good demand from packers for canning stock, and, as the offerings were smaller, a stronger feeling developed in the market for such, and prices advanced 15c to 25c per 100 pounds, with sales of bulls at $2.90 to $3.15, and cows at $2.25 to $2.75 per 100 pounds.

Owing to the continued good demand for lambs from packers and butchers for future requirements, and the falling off in supplies, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds, with sales of Ontario stock at $6.25 to $6.50, and Quebec at $5.75 to $6 per 100 pounds. And sell the neighbors soap
And chewing candy, boots and shoes
And yards of clothline rope
And tea and coffee, needles, pins
And pepper sauce and milk
And matches, stoves and rubber heels
And towel and silk.

I'D like to run a country store

And keep a line of socks
And handkerchiefs and frying pans
And knives and forks and clocks
And crackers, nuts and sealing wax,
Bananas, beans and cheese
And cistern pumps and buttonhooks
And honey from the bees.

I'D like to have a stock of prunes

And needles, pins and thread
And pens and pencils, paper pads
And lint and bread
And pocketknives and garden tools,
Elastic, hooks and eyes
And marmalade and breakfast food
And juicy homemade pies.

I'D like to run a country store

And see the neighbors come
To purchase for the girl a dress
And buy the boy a drum,
And we would sit around the stove
And run the congress down
And talk about the graft and crime

He Won't Go Fishing.

Hon. William Harty, of Kingston, who has lived through a stormy political career and amassed a fortune in business, has a side to his nature which his closer friends may guess at but can never entirely fathom. This is manifested chiefly in a hatred of physical cruelty. He is a hard fighter in a political campaign, but the infliction of suffering in any form, whether it affects man or animal, is his most bitter abhorrence, and he will go far to prevent it. This humane tendency is carried even to the extent of refusing to go fishing, entailing as it would the sacrifice of living creatures for the sake of sport. Such a strange characteristic is not the result of any fad or some personal code, but is a natural outcome of a high sensitive-nature to pain.

MONKS WERE ROBBED.

Ginseng Worth $500 Pillaged at Oka Monastery.

The caterpillar pest has ruined the apple crop in the Two Mountain district save in the Trappists orchards. In St. Joseph's and other surrounding villages the apple trees have suffered immensely from the deadly slug.

The Trappist Monks, through the work of one of their members, Rev. Father Leopold, the horticulturist, and one of the youngest and most distinguished Fathers of that austere order after visiting many of the leading orchards in Europe last year discovered a remedy for the many deadly enemies which have been playing great havoc among the various class of fruit trees of late years.

"It was a hard fight to keep ahead of the enemy this year," said one of the veteran monks who has spent nearly forty years in the cloister, speaking to a Montreal Standard representative, "but we had to work hard and we have succeeded in saving our fruit trees. While the crop will not be as large as last year, still it will be an average one."

The vegetable crops will be in the same proportion.

The ginseng plant of a famous medicinal plant prized by the Chinese as such is being cultivated by the monks. At present there are several acres under cultivation, the value of which is $40,000. It sold in China for $15, $25 and $30 a pound while a rare species of the plant is sold for from $450 to $600 a pound.

The plant takes seven years for full maturity, though after four years portions of it like the seeds, which grow on the top, may be used for different purposes. There are only three places in Canada where the plant is cultivated, the Trappists having the largest supply. The Chinese keep the great medicinal value of this plant a profound secret.

Recently, during a severe storm, robbers entered the ginseng garden, situated in the woods some distance from the monastery, and stole $500 worth of roots, besides destroying the lattice work and doing other damage. At present a vicious dog guards the place both day and night while a few yards from the garden an old log cabin called "Solitude de Marie," stands where a monk sleeps with a loaded gun hanging on the wall.

When the reporter visited the place things looked as if the marauders were making a second attempt on the premises, as the brother must have heard some noise in the night for the gun was taken down and was resting on a stool near the window from which a good view of any persons entering the

BORDEN'S CABINET SHUFFLE

Ottawa, Oct. 31—Now that the changes of mind exhibited by Prime Minister Borden with regard to his Cabinet reconstruction have been ended with the appointment of Hon. Louis Coderre as Secretary of State a vast amount of speculation is going on amongst Conservatives as well as Liberals as to just what this extraordinary move means, for extraordinary it is in every way. While Hon. Mr. Coderre is a reputable lawyer of good standing in Montreal he has never distinguished himself in a way to indicate that he was built of cabinet timber, in fact up to Sept. 21st, 1911, he had been twice defeated in Hochelaga, and also as candidate for city controller.

In 1911 the Hochelaga election was run strictly according to schedule. Mr. Coderre was kept almost entirely out of Westmount, where the English speaking workers applied the typical Ontario campaign amongst the ultra-Protestant Tories, while the really hard work was done quietly amongst the French speaking population in St. Henri, so that in the one riding was concentrated the whole double shuffle system by which the Tories won in Ontario and gained in Quebec. The result was that Mr. Coderre won by about 1370.

But during the campaign Mr. Coderre was not prominent enough for his utterances to be followed with much interest, so that though he supported the Nationalist platform it attracted no attention. No one dreamed of him as a Cabinet possibility.

No did they until the Prime Minister's characteristic wobbling brought him to the front a few days ago as a strong aspirant. If the Conservative Press is to be believed it would seem that first Mr. Borden tried to get T. Chase Casgrain of Montreal, an old political war horse, to accept the vacant portfolio, but the latter courteously declined. Then it was offered to Mr. L. T. Marchal, a well-known lawyer and Conservative leader of Montreal. The latter did not decline, and almost to the last it seemed certain that he would be appointed, to such an extent that he received many congratulations. The plan was to provide in some suitable manner for Mr. Coderre and give Hochelaga to Mr. Marchal.

But again the spirit changed. Sir Rodolphe Forget appeared on the scene, and the sceptre of Nationalism crept in. Mr. Marchal was a straight Conservative, and it was not thought diplomatic to break too definitely with the Nationalists. So at the last moment the Prime Minister again changed his mind, and decided to continue the Nationalist representation in his coalition cabinet, and Louis Coderre became Hon. Mr. Coderre, Secretary of State.

Thus owing to the political exigencies caused by Mr. Monk's resignation, Hon. Louis Coderre is in the peculiar position of a ministerial representative of the French Canadian Catholics of Quebec with a seat won for him by the big Protestant English speaking vote of Westmount. He is in the position of a man who won his seat through open support of the Nationalist principles and an acceptor of Nationalist help, taking the place in the Cabinet vacated by the leader of the Nationalists because of hopeless divergencies on the Naval issue. It is pretty evident that with this unexpected rise to eminence Hon. Mr. Coderre must be able to forget a few things.

THEY RIDE TO SCHOOL.

"Consolidated" System a Boon to Manitoba Children.

As a consequence of the scattered population of Manitoba, what is known as "Consolidation of Schools" has been brought forward. Consolidation simply means the merging of two or more small, inefficient school districts into one larger and more efficient one, large enough in numbers to produce a school, graded, if possible, with energy and spirit so strong that with added life, good work can be done and large enough in territory that the burden of taxation may not be too heavy and at the same time may produce sufficient funds to carry on the work in an up-to-date and progressive manner, says M. Hall-Jones in the Canadian Courier.

A necessary accompaniment of consolidation is the conveyance to and from the school each day at the public expense, all children of school age who live over a certain distance from the school house, thus eliminating the element of unfairness that now exists in the rural schools owing to the different distances at which the children live from the school, and at the same time placing the cost of conveyance on the whole district. In Manitoba consolidated districts, all pupils are conveyed who live over one mile from the school house. It has become customary to use covered vans for conveyance. These are not always heated, but in some cases, carbon foot warmers or soapstone are used.

Just when and where consolidation on a small scale began, cannot be told, but the first law of which we read was passed in Massachusetts in the year 1869, and to-day it forms a part of the rural school system of 32 states. Eight hundred completely consolidated, and not less than two thousand partially consolidated, schools attest to the remarkable adaptability of the system to the peculiar needs of agricultural communities.

In Eastern Canada, consolidation was introduced as part of the "Macdonald Scheme" in Nova Scotia in 1903; in New Brunswick and Ontario in 1904; in Prince Edward Island in 1905. For a time it bore good fruit, but has not apparently taken hold of the people with any great force. Some districts continued the consolidation, but others thought it too expensive and dropped out.

Manitoba may properly be termed the "Mecca" of consolidation in Canada. Here, the people have taken hold of the plan from the first voluntarily, and aided only by grants from the Department of Education. This class of school, judging from appearances, has come to stay, in the West.

The Department of Education, in 1905, realizing that it is better, both on economical and on pedagogical grounds, to unite the many small and weak schools, dispersed over a large extent of territory, in a few strong, well-equipped and well conducted graded schools located at convenient points, had an amendment to the School Act passed, to permit of this being done, and Virden was the first consolidated school formed, followed in 1906 by Holland. More consolidated schools have been formed in the past year than in the three years previously, the total number now formed being 26, while there are probably over a dozen in course of formation.

One of the strong points in the consolidation system is the successful conveyance of the school children. It has been conclusively proven that where the children are conveyed to and from school they attend more

A PRESIDENTIAL TRAGEDY.

Haiti's Recent Uprising Is Only One of a Long Series of Outrages.

Whether the gunpowder which blew up the Haitian National Palace and killed President Cincinnatus Leconte, was touched off by accident or by design, the fault was the administration's.

The police authorities were unable to clear up the mystery immediately after the explosion, and while the enemies of Leconte were suspected, there was not evidence enough uncovered to justify the arrest of anybody.

A paper draws the conclusion that an administration palace containing a powder magazine and large stores of arms is in itself a confession that Haiti is a Government which derived its powers from some other source than the consent of the governed. This bit of recent history in which Leconte figured conspicuously is well worth reading:

Leconte was Minister of the Interior under President Nord Alexis, whose bloody reign of tyranny came to an end in exile. But for the protection he begged from a foreign warship Nord Alexis would have been torn to fragments in revenge for his savage and summary executions of citizens on the mere suspicion of disloyalty.

President Leconte was the man who often carried out the orders of Nord Alexis. Upon the downfall of that petty tyrant he was compelled to seek safety in exile. President Simon, who obtained his title to the Presidency by the overthrow of Nord Alexis, was subsequently challenged by Leconte, who, from his refuge in Jamaica, plotted, and a German consulate saved him from death.

He promptly went about another revolution, and next time he succeeded in overthrowing Simon. Following the long-established precedent, he declared himself President pro tem, and ordered an election. The people who took the trouble to vote at all, voted unanimously for President Leconte, for any other choice would have been an invitation to face the firing squad.

THE ARMAGEDDON OF THE SCRIPTURES

Pastor Russell Presents Some Astounding Views.

He Claims That the Time For the Establishment of Messiah's Kingdom Is Here — Not Recognizing This Truth, Papacy, Protestantism and the Civil Powers of Earth Are About to Unite In Common Cause.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The Brooklyn Academy of Music was crowded to the limit to-day to hear Pastor Russell's discourse on the "Battle of Armageddon." His text was: "He gathered them together unto a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon." (Rev. xvi, 16.) He said: Armageddon in the Hebrew signifies the Mount of Destruction.

The Lord has associated the name Armageddon with the great controversy between Truth and Error, during which the New Age of Messiah's glory will be ushered in. He has used figures of speech in Revelation to hide certain important truths until due time for their revelation.

"Unclean Spirits Like Frogs."

Three unclean spirits, according to the context, will proceed from the mouth of the Beast, the Dragon and the False Prophet, and will assemble all the kings and their armies on one side for the great Armageddon battle. In this highly symbolical language, doctrines or teachings are represented as "frogs." The Pastor discussed frog characteristics — pompousness, inflation of dignity, and croaking. Thus read, the symbol signifies that these systems will send forth similar teachings.

They will look "wise" and see little respecting the differences between them. They will prate on Apostolic Authority, the Divine prerogatives of the clergy and the civil power. They will croak alarmingly respecting the dire results of personal and press liberties. They will thus alarm intelligent people and cause the wheels of progress to turn backward toward medieval conditions.

Dragon, Beast and False Prophet.

The Dragon of Revelation represents the Civil power; the Leopard of Revelation xiii, 1, 2, represents Papacy; the "False Prophet" is but another name for the Image of the Beast of Revelation xiii, 14, 15—Federated Protestantism. Good people in these three great Systems are being led into the Armageddon battle without realizing that they "fight against God."

The foretelling of evil to the professed people of God, is not a pleasant task. Nevertheless the time has come to "cry aloud and spare not," to show God's people the errors in which we have become involved and warn against enlisting on the wrong side of the Armageddon battle.

The Lord is not accountable for the moral character of all the people who will fight on His side. The Scriptures declare, "His servants ye are to whom ye render service." In the coming bat-

One of the strong points in the consolidation system is the successful conveyance of the school children. It has been conclusively proven that where the children are conveyed to and from school they attend more regularly. Of the 50 vans employed in the year 1911 by 20 schools in operation in the various parts of the province representing all kinds of geographical conditions, only 30 trips were missed during the whole year; but little more than one trip for every two vans, and these vans traveled over route varying in length from 2 to 9 miles. One route traveled was 11 miles in length.

UNDERTAKER TO THE AGES.

No One Knows How Many Great Cities Lie Buried Under the Dust.

As dust was the beginning, so shall it be the end of all things, writes J. Gordon Ogden. It is the cosmic undertaker of the ages, and silently, restlessly and earnestly it has performed its function. The proudest monuments built by man, the Sphinx, the Pyramids, the Colossus of Rhodes, the Gardens of Babylon and the glories of Grecian art, have either crumbled to the dust whence they sprang or have been buried in its winding sheet. So far as human grandeur is concerned, even "imperial Caesar, dead and turned to clay, might stop a hole to keep the wind away!" No one knows how many Londons or Jeruselems there have been. Excavations into the dust on which these cities are built reveal the relics and remains of former cities which once flourished and were mighty, but were finally entombed in the course of untold centuries by the gradual but immense deposits of dust and debris. When Macaulay's New Zealander shall muse in profound melancholy upon the shattered remains of London Bridge he will behold a vast battlefield, where half-buried columns and desert sands shall proclaim the final sovereignty of dust.

The mighty Himalayas, whose snowy summits have as yet defied the foot of man, are slowly crumbling into dust, and the lofty peaks of the Andes are splintering, fragment by fragment until they, too, shall become clouds of the valley. Every wind that blows "soft o'er Ceylon's Isle" carries away in tiny dust particles some of its beautiful hills and vales. Every brooklet trickling down the rugged mountain side bears part of a continent to the sea. Every year the Mississippi river carries down to the gulf little motes of matter, river-worn dust, amounting to more than 7,500,000,000 cubic feet. In 3,500 years the Mississippi cuts downs its entire basin one foot, and as the mean height of the continent is only 2,000 feet, were the process to go on uninterrupted, North America would be reduced to the sea level in about 7,000,000 years. When we stop to consider what the other great rivers of the globe are doing, such as the Nile, the Yang-tse-kiang, the Yukon and the Danube, we can appreciate in some measure the everlasting waste that is eating away great continents and foresee the inevitable supremacy of the kingdom of dust.

ordered an election. The people who took the trouble to vote at all, voted unanimously for President Leconte, for any other choice would have been an invitation to face the firing squad.

The voters of Haiti, like those elsewhere who bow to the machine, always "vote right." In consequence of this cowardice in the face of a military despotism their Government is as corrupt and as oppressive as the Presidents know how to make it.

It is not a matter of race that makes Haiti a political pustule on the face of the earth. It is the lack of education. The term education is here employed in its larger and best sense, for the primary and most important purpose of education is not to make scholars, but to make exemplary citizens who will be educated to proper standards of morality and of patriotism.

When the average citizen grows up with the idea that government is merely grafting privilege whereby the officials in power are licensed to levy tax and tribute, public and private, without authorization of any law but the law of greed, government necessarily becomes a travesty and the subjects of government merely slaves.

This is a tragic culmination for Haiti. The early white colonies quickly exterminated the aboriginal inhabitants of whom they made slaves, and Africans were imported to take their places. Again the greed of the rapacious white man overreached itself, for soon the black population was several times larger than the white and the negroes began to ask themselves why thousands of them should be the slaves or cattle of hundreds of whites and be denied all privileges as men and women.

They appealed to France, which became owner of the island by the treaty of Ryswick, but France had problems at home that absorbed her energies and the French planters had influence with the home Government in case of an inclination to consider the petition. There being no hope of help, the slaves rose in rebellion in 1791 and slaughtered their taskmasters with fine enthusiasm.

against enlisting on the wrong side of the Armageddon battle.

The Lord is not accountable for the moral character of all the people who will fight on His side. The Scriptures declare, "His servants ye are to whom ye render service." In the coming battle some very good, intelligent and moral people will be found fighting on the side of Mammon; contrariwise, some very ignorant people will be found fighting with the Lord.

The Errors Which Ensnare.

The Bible declares that God has committed to the Gentile Governments the privilege of ruling the earth during a period of 2,520 years — "The Times of the Gentiles." Meantime, God has been electing a scanty few from all nations, to be associated with Messiah in His Kingdom, now due to supplant Gentile rule. Neglecting the teachings of the Bible, Christendom thinks that Christ and His Church have been reigning over the kings of the earth for the past thousand years. They delude themselves into thinking that their armies are preparing to fight the Christian warfare. They pray, "Thy Kingdom come," while rejecting the King and His Kingdom.

Suddenly, "in one hour," (Revelation xviii, 10) the most terrible Revolution will occur. (Revelation xvi, 13.) The masses will hope for victory through the ballot. When this final recourse shall have failed, the Social explosion will bring anarchy: "There shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." (Daniel xii, 1.) Our Lord added, "And except those days be shortened there should no flesh be saved." (Matt. xxiv, 21, 22.) But those days will be shortened; the Elect, with their glorious Head, will establish the Messianic Kingdom.

Armageddon Not Yet But Soon.

For forty years the Armageddon forces have been mustering for conflict. Strikes, lockouts and riots have been merely incidental skirmishes. Court and Army scandals in Europe, Insurance, Trust and Court scandals in America, have shaken public confidence. Dynamite plots, charged by turns on employes and on employers, have made each distrustful of the other. The lines of battle are daily becoming more distinctly marked. Nevertheless Armageddon cannot yet be fought, according to prophecy.

Gentile Times have still two years to run. The "Image of the Beast" of our context must yet receive life—power. The Image must be transformed from a mere mechanism to a living force. Protestant Federation realizes that its organization will still be futile unless it receives vitalization—unless its clergy be recognized as possessed of apostolic ordination and authority to teach. This the prophecy indicates will come from the two-horned beast, which, we believe, symbolically represents the Church of England. Protestantism and Catholicism, operating in conjunction for the suppression of human liberties, await this vivifying of the Image.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"In short," continued the cardinal, "as I have heard nothing of you for some time past I wished to know what you were doing. I have marked out a plan with respect to you."

D'Artagnan became more and more astonished.

"I wished to explain this plan to you on the day you received my first invitation, but you did not come. Sit down, M. d'Artagnan." And the cardinal pointed with his finger to a chair for the young man.

"You are brave, M. d'Artagnan," continued his eminence. "You are prudent, which is still better. I like men of head and heart. But you have powerful enemies. If you do not take great heed they will destroy you!"

"Alas, monseigneur," replied the young man, "very easily, no doubt, for they are strong and well supported, while I am alone!"

"Yes, that's very true; but, alone as you are, you have already done much and will still do more, I don't doubt. Now, what would you say to an engagement in my guards and a company after the campaign?"

"Monseigneur"—replied D'Artagnan, with an embarrassed air.

"What? Do you decline it?" cried the cardinal, with astonishment.

"I am in his majesty's guards, monseigneur, and I have no reason to be dissatisfied."

"But it appears to me that my guards are also his majesty's guards, and who after serving in a French corps serves the king?"

"Monseigneur, your eminence has understood my words."

"It is fit you should know, M. d'Artagnan, that I have received heavy then led his company to the Louvre, where the king passed them in review.

The king was dull and appeared ill, which took off a little from his usual lofty carriage. In fact, the evening before, a fever had seized him in the midst of the parliament, while he was holding his bed of justice. He had, not the less, decided upon setting out that same evening.

The review over, the guards set forward alone on their march, the musketeers waiting for the king. Aramis wrote a long letter. To whom nobody knew. Kitty, who was to set out that evening for Tours, was waiting in the next chamber.

D'Artagnan defied with his company. On arriving at the Faubourg St. Antoine he turned around to look gayly at the Bastille. But as it was the Bastille alone he looked at he did not observe milady, who, mounted upon a light chestnut horse, pointed him out with her finger to two ill looking men, who came close up to the ranks to take notice of him. To a look of interrogation which they made milady replied by a sign that that was the person. Then, certain that there could be no mistake in the execution of her orders, she turned her horse and disappeared.

The two men followed the company and at leaving the Faubourg St. Antoine mounted two horses.

The Siege of La Rochelle.

THE siege of La Rochelle was one of the great political events of the reign of Louis XIII. and one of the great military enterprises of the cardinal.

musket tore up the stones near him.

D'Artagnan was not one of those uselessly brave men who seek a ridiculous death, in order that it may be said of them that they did not give way a single step.

"If there should be a third shot," said he, "I am a lost man."

He immediately therefore took to his heels, but a third shot was fired, and this time so well aimed that it struck his hat and carried it ten paces from him.

As he, however, had no other hat, he picked up this as he ran and arrived at his quarters, very pale and quite out of breath.

It must be a vengeance of milady's, he decided.

He endeavored in vain to remember the faces or dress of the assassins. He had escaped so rapidly that he had not had leisure to remark anything.

"Ah, my poor friends!" murmured D'Artagnan. "Where are you? How sadly I want you!"

D'Artagnan remained all the next day in his quarters, assigning as a reason to himself that the weather was bad.

At 9 o'clock next morning the drums beat to arms. The Duke of Orleans visited the posts. Monsieur passed along the front of the line. Then all the superior officers approached him to pay their compliments.

At the expiration of a minute or two M. Dessessart made D'Artagnan a sign to come to him. He left the ranks and advanced to receive his orders.

"Monsieur is about to ask for some men of good courage for a dangerous mission."

In fact, the Rochellais had made a sortie during the night and had re-

my. One of them took his barrel and used it as he would. He aimed a terrible blow at the man, who avoided it by springing to one side. But by this movement he left a passage free to the other, who darted off toward the bastion. The Rochellais who guarded the bastion were ignorant of the intention of the man they saw coming toward them, they fired upon him, and he was killed by a ball, which broke his armor.

In the meantime D'Artagnan thrown himself upon the other, attacking him with his sword. The conflict was not long. The young man had nothing to defend himself with but his discharged arquebus. The guard slipped down the barrel of the now useless weapon and fell through the thigh of the ass.

D'Artagnan immediately pointed his sword at his throat. "Oh, do not kill me!" cried the man. "Pardon, pardon, my comrade, I will tell you all!"

"Wretch," cried D'Artagnan, "speak quickly! Who em to assassinate me?"

"A woman whom I don't know who is called milady. My friend knows her and called her so with him she agreed and no more. He even has in his pocket a letter to that person."

"And how much did she give you for this fine enterprise?"

"A hundred louis."

"Well, come," said the young man, laughing, "she thinks I am a fool! A hundred louis! That is a temptation for a man like you. Stand you accepted it, and I will pardon you, but upon one condition."

"What is that?" said the man. "That you will go and fetch the letter your comrade has in his pocket. And at these words D'Artagnan, so menacing a gesture that the man sprang up.

"Stop, stop," cried he, "I will go, strength from terror, 'I will go!'"

D'Artagnan took the soldier's bus, made him go on before him, and urged him toward his company, pricking him behind with the point of his sword. Terror was so strongly pain-

"Monsieur, your eminence has ill understood my words."
"It is fit you should know, M. d'Artagnan, that I have received heavy and serious complaints against you. You do not consecrate your days and nights to the king's service alone."

D'Artagnan colored.
"In fact," said the cardinal, placing his hand upon a bundle of papers, "I have here a whole pile which concerns you. Come, reflect and decide."

"Your goodness confounds me, monseigneur," replied D'Artagnan, "but since monseigneur permits me to speak freely I will presume to say that all my friends are in the king's musketeers and guards, and, by an inconceivable fatality, all my enemies are in the service of your eminence."

"Do you happen to entertain the proud idea that I have not yet made you an offer equal to your merit?"

"Monsieur, your eminence is a hundred times too kind on my account. The siege of La Rochelle is about to be resumed, monseigneur. I shall serve under the eye of your eminence, and if I have the good fortune to conduct myself at that siege in such a manner as to attract your attention, then I shall at least leave behind me some brilliant action to justify the protection with which you honor me."

"That is to say, you refuse to serve me, monsieur," said the cardinal with a tone of vexation, through which, however, might be seen a sort of esteem. "Remain free, then, and preserve your hatreds and your sympathies."

"Monsieur"—

"Well, well!" said the cardinal, "I don't wish you any ill, but you must be aware that it is quite trouble enough to defend and reward our friends. We owe nothing to our enemies; and let me give you a piece of advice: Take good care of yourself, M. d'Artagnan, for from the moment I withdraw my hand from you I would not give a penny for your life."

"I shall entertain whatever may happen," said D'Artagnan, placing his hand upon his breast and bowing, "an eternal gratitude toward your eminence for that which you have done for me."

"Well, let it be then, as you have said, M. d'Artagnan. We shall see each other again after the campaign. I will have my eye upon you, for I shall be there, and on our return, well—we will settle our account!"

"Ah, monseigneur!" cried D'Artagnan. "Spare me the weight of your anger; remain neuter, monseigneur, if you find that I act as a gentleman ought to act."

"Young man," said Richelieu, "if I am able to say to you again once more what I have said to you today, I promise you to do so."

D'Artagnan went out, but at the door his heart almost failed him and he felt inclined to return. But the noble and severe countenance of Athos crossed his mind. If he made the compact with the cardinal, which was required, Athos would no more give him his hand, Athos would renounce him.

The whole of the next day was spent in preparations for departure and the night in farewells.

At the first sound of the morning trumpet the friends separated, the musketeers hastening to the hotel of M. de Treville, the guards to that of M. Dessest. Each of the captains

The Siege of La Rochelle.

THE siege of La Rochelle was one of the great political events of the reign of Louis XIII and one of the great military enterprises of the cardinal.

Of the important cities given up by Henry IV. to the Huguenots as places of safety there only remained La Rochelle. It became necessary, therefore, to destroy this last bulwark of Calvinism.

Richelieu, as every one knows, had been in love with the queen. But Buckingham, who tried to aid La Rochelle, had had the advantage over him and in two or three circumstances, particularly that of the diamond studs.

It was, then, Richelieu's object not only to get rid of an enemy of France, but to avenge himself of a rival.

Richelieu knew that while combating England he was combating Buckingham, that when triumphing over England he triumphed over Buckingham. In short that in humiliating England in the eyes of Europe he humiliated Buckingham in the eyes of the queen.

The first advantage had been gained by Buckingham. Arriving unexpectedly in sight of the Isle of Re, with sixty vessels and nearly 20,000 men, he had surprised the Count de Toiras, who commanded for the king in the Isle. He had, after a sanguinary conflict, effected his landing.

The Count de Toiras entered into the citadel St. Martin with his garrison and threw a hundred men into a little fort, called the fort of La Pree.

This event had hastened the resolutions of the cardinal, and till the king and he could take the command of the siege of La Rochelle, which was determined on, he had sent the Duke of Orleans to direct the first operations and had ordered all the troops he could dispose of to march toward the theater of war. It was of this detachment, sent as a vanguard, that our friend D'Artagnan formed a part.

The king, as we have said, was to follow as soon as his bed of justice had been held, but on rising from his bed of justice on the 28th of June he felt himself attacked by fever. He was, notwithstanding, anxious to set out, but his illness becoming more serious, he was forced to stop at Ville-

Now whenever the king stopped the musketeers stopped. It resulted that D'Artagnan found himself separated from his good friends—Athos, Aramis and Porthos.

He, however, arrived without accident in the camp established before La Rochelle on the 10th of the month of September of the year 1627.

The guards under the command of M. Dessest took up their quarters at the Minimes; but, as we know, D'Artagnan, preoccupied by the ambition of passing into the musketeers, had formed but few friendships among his comrades.

While walking solitarily late in the afternoon along a pretty little road which led from the camp to the village of Angoutin he saw the barrel of a musket glitter from behind a hedge and another on the other side of the road.

He threw himself upon the ground. At the same instant the gun was fired, and he heard the whistling of a ball pass over his head.

No time was to be lost. D'Artagnan sprang up with a bound, and at the same instant the ball from the other to come to him. He left the ranks and advanced to receive his orders.

"Monsieur is about to ask for some men of good courage for a dangerous mission."

In fact, the Rochellais had made a sortie during the night and had retaken a bastion of which the royal army had gained possession two days before. The matter was to ascertain by reconnoitering whether the enemy guarded this bastion.

At the end of a few minutes monseigneur raised his voice and said:

"I want for this mission three or four volunteers led by a man who can be depended upon."

"As to the man to be depended upon I have him under my hand, monseigneur," said M. Dessest, pointing to D'Artagnan.

"Four men of good will who will risk being killed with me," said D'Artagnan, raising his sword.

Two of his comrades of the guards immediately sprang forward, and two other soldiers having joined them the number was deemed sufficient.

D'Artagnan set out with his four companions and followed the trench. The two guards marched abreast with him, and the two soldiers followed behind.

They arrived thus, screened by the lining of the trench, till they came, within a hundred paces of the bastion. There, on turning round, D'Artagnan perceived that the two soldiers had disappeared. He thought that, beginning to be afraid, they had stayed behind.

At the turning of the countercarp they found themselves within about sixty paces of the bastion. They saw no one, and the bastion seemed abandoned, but all at once a circle of smoke enveloped the giant of stone, and a dozen balls came whistling round D'Artagnan and his companions.

They knew all they wished to know. The bastion was guarded. A longer stay in this dangerous spot would have been useless imprudence.

On arriving at the angle of the trench which was to serve them as a rampart one of the guards fell. A ball passed through his breast. The other, who was safe and sound, continued his way toward the camp.

D'Artagnan was not willing to abandon his companion thus and stooped down to raise him and assist him in regaining the lines. But at this moment two shots were fired. One ball hit the head of the already wounded guard, and the other was flattened against a rock after having passed within two inches of D'Artagnan.

The young man turned quickly around, for this attack could not come from the bastion, which was masked by the angle of the trench. The idea of the two soldiers who had abandoned him occurred to his mind and with them that of the assassins of two evenings before. He resolved then this time to know what he had to trust to and fell upon the body of his comrade as if he had been dead.

He quickly saw two heads appear above an abandoned work within thirty paces of him. They were the heads of the two soldiers.

When they were within ten paces of him D'Artagnan sprang up close to them.

The assassins comprehended that if they fled toward the camp without having killed their man they should be accused by him. Therefore their face, covered with a cold sweat. D'Artagnan took pity on casting upon him a look of compassion. "Stop!" said he. "I will s the difference between a man courage and such a base creature. Stay where you are, I myself."

And with a light step, an eye watch, observing the movement, enemy and taking advantage of accidents of the ground, D'Artagnan succeeded in reaching the soldier.

There were two means of getting at the object—to search him on the spot, or to carry him away, making a hole in his body and searching him in the trench.

D'Artagnan preferred the first means and lifted the assassin by his shoulders at the moment my friend.

A slight shock, the dull thud of three balls which penetrated a last cry, a convulsion, proved to D'Artagnan that he endeavored to assassinate him, saved his life.

D'Artagnan regained the trench, threw the body down by the man, who was as pale as death.

Among some unimportant details D'Artagnan found the follo ter, that which he had sought risk of his life:

Since you have lost sight of th and she is now in safety in the at which you should never have her to arrive, try at least not to man. If you do, you know that reaches far and that you shall very dearly the hundred louis had of me.

"But what were you to h with that woman?" asked D'Artagnan with great agitation.

"We were to have conveyed house in the Place Royale," wounded man.

"Yes, yes," murmured D'Artagnan, "that's the place—millady's residence!"

It was possible, then, to find Bonacieux, and a convent was pregnable.

This idea completely restored to him his heart.

"Yes," said the man, who could scarcely believe in such magnanimity,
"but is not that to have me hanged?"
"You may have my word," said he.

D'Artagnan explained the sword wound of his companion by a sortie which he improvised. He described the death of the other soldier and the perils they had encountered. This recital was for him the occasion of a veritable triumph. The whole army talked of this expedition for a day, and the commander paid him his compliments upon it.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Anjou Wine.

AFTER the most disheartening news of the king's health a report of his convalescence began to prevail in the army, and as he was very anxious to be in person at the siege it was said that as soon as he could mount on horseback he would set forward.

D'Artagnan felt one uneasiness only,
and that was at not hearing from his three friends.

But one morning at the commencement of the month of November everything was explained to him by this letter, dated from Villorot:

M. d'Artagnan—MM. Athos, Porthos and Aramis after having had an entertainment at my house and enjoying themselves very much created such a disturbance that the provost of the castle, a very rigid man, has ordered them to be confined for some days. But I accomplish the order they have given me by forwarding to you a dozen bottles of my Anjou wine, with which they are much pleased.
Your very humble and obedient servant,
GODEAU,

Messman of the Musketeers.

D'Artagnan went among the guards with whom he had formed greater intimacy than with the others to invite them to enjoy the wine with him.

One of the two guards was engaged that evening and another the next, so that the meeting was fixed for the day after that.

D'Artagnan sent Planchet to assist in preparing everything for the entertainment.

Planchet called in the assistance of the lackey of one of his master's guests, named Pourreau, and Brisemont, the false soldier who had endeavored to kill D'Artagnan and who, belonging to no corps, had entered into the service of D'Artagnan, or, rather, of Planchet, since D'Artagnan had saved his life.

The hour of the banquet being come,
the two guests arrived, took their places, and the dishes were arranged upon the table.

The guests, after having eaten the soup, were about to lift the first glass of wine to their lips when all at once the cannon sounded from Fort Louis and Fort Neuf. The guards, with D'Artagnan, imagining this to be caused by some unexpected attack either of the besieged or the English, sprang to their swords.

But scarcely were they out of the canteen than they were made aware of the cause of this noise. Cries of "Vive le Roi! Vive M. le Cardinal!"
resounded on every side, and the drums were beaten in all directions.

In short, the king had arrived at that

"Athos, she is your wife, I tell you,"

"It is impossible to remain thus, with a sword hanging eternally over one's called the Red Dovecote which Athos had discovered two days before upon the route to La Jairie, following the road which led to the camp and quite upon their guard for fear of an ambush, when at about a quarter of a league from the village of Boinar they fancied they heard the sound of horses approaching them. All three halted, closed in and waited, occupying the middle of the road. Athos, advancing a few paces in front of the others, cried in a firm voice:

"Who goes there?"

"Who goes there, yourselves?" replied one of two horsemen whom they saw.

"King's musketeers," said Athos.

"Advance and render me an account of what you are doing here at this time of night."

"Monsieur le Cardinal!" cried the stupefied musketeers, recognizing the voice.

"Your name?" cried the cardinal for the third time.

"Athos," said the musketeer.

"These three musketeers shall follow us," said the cardinal in an under voice to his attendants. "I am not willing it should be known I have left the camp, and by following us we shall be certain they will tell nobody."

"We are gentlemen, monsieur," said Athos. "Require our parole and give yourself no uneasiness. We can keep a secret."

"You have a quick ear, M. Athos," said the cardinal. "But now listen to this. It is not from mistrust that I request you to follow me, but for my security. Your companions are no doubt MM. Porthos and Aramis. I know you, gentlemen. I know you are not quite my friends, and I am sorry you are not so."

"Well, upon my honor," said Athos,
"your eminence is right in taking us with you. We have seen several ill looking faces on the road, and we have even had a quarrel at the Red Dovecote with four evil looking men whom we were compelled to place hors de combat to protect a lady."

"And was this lady young and handsome?" asked the cardinal, with a certain degree of anxiety.

"We did not see her, monseigneur."

"You did not see her! Ah, very well!" replied the cardinal quickly.

"You acted quite rightly in defending a woman. I am going to the Red Dovecote myself. Follow me."

They soon arrived at the silent, solitary inn. No doubt the host knew what illustrious visitor he expected and had consequently sent intruders out of the way.

The cardinal alighted. The three musketeers did so likewise. The cardinal threw the bridle of his horse to his attendant. The three musketeers fastened their horses to the shutter.

The host stood at the door. For him the cardinal was only an officer coming to visit a lady.

"Have you any chamber on the ground floor where these gentlemen can wait near a good fire?" said the cardinal.

The host opened the door of a large room, in which an old bad stove had just been replaced by a large and excellent chimney.

"I have this, monsieur," said he.

"That will do," replied the cardinal.
"Come in, gentlemen, and be kind enough to wait for me. I shall not be more than half an hour." And he went

"Vive le Roi! Vive M. le Cardinal!" resounded on every side, and the drums
were beaten in all directions.

In short, the king had arrived at that moment with all his household and a re-enforcement of 10,000 troops. His musketeers preceded and followed him.
D'Artagnan, placed in line with his company, saluted with an expressive gesture his three friends.

The ceremony of the arrival over,
the four friends were soon together.

"You could not have arrived in better time. The dinner cannot have had time to get cold, can it, gentlemen?"
added D'Artagnan, turning to the two guards, whom he introduced to his friends.

"Is there any drinkable wine in your tavern?" asked Athos.

"There is your own Anjou wine, my dear friend, that you sent me," replied D'Artagnan.

"Did you send this wine, Aramis?"
said Athos.

"No; and you, Porthos?"

"No."

D'Artagnan grew pale, and a convulsive trembling shook all his limbs.

"Hasten! Hasten, my friends!" cried

D'Artagnan. "A horrible suspicion crosses my mind. Can this be another vengeance on the part of that woman?"

D'Artagnan rushed toward the canteen, the three musketeers and the two guards following him.

The first object that met the eyes of D'Artagnan on entering was Brisemont, stretched upon the ground and dying in horrible convulsions. Plan-chet and Fourreau, as pale as death, were endeavoring to render him assistance.

"Ah!" cried he on perceiving D'Artagnan, "ah, this is frightful! You pretend to pardon me, and you poison me!"

"Do not think so, Briseumont," said D'Artagnan. "I swear to you that the wine was poisoned and that I was going to drink of it as you did."

"I do not believe you!" cried the soldier. And he expired amid horrible tortures.

"Frightful! Frightful!" murmured Athos, while Porthos broke the bottles, and Aramis gave orders, a little too late, that a confessor should be sent for.

"Oh, my friends," said D'Artagnan,
"you come once more to save my life,
not only mine, but that of these gentlemen. Gentlemen," continued he, addressing the guards, "I request you will be silent with regard to this adventure. Great personages may have had a hand in what you have seen, and if talked about the evil would only recoil upon us. Accept my excuses, and put off the party till another day. I beg of you."

The two guards courteously accepted D'Artagnan's excuses and, perceiving that the four friends desired to be alone, retired.

The host gave them another chamber and served them with fresh eggs and some water, which Athos went himself to draw at the fountain." In a few words Porthos and Aramis were informed of past events.

"Do you really believe it is she?"
said Athos.

"I am sure of it."

"Nevertheless I confess I still doubt."

"I like the means well enough," said D'Artagnan, "but she"—

"What she?" asked Athos.

"Constance."

"Mme. Bonacieux! Ah, that's true!"
said Athos. "My poor friend, I had forgotten you were in love."

"Well, but," said Aramis, "have you not learned by the letter you found on the assassin that she is in a convent?
She may be very comfortable in a convent."

"Well, as soon as the siege is over we'll carry her off from that convent," said Porthos.

"But we must first learn what convent she is in."

"That's true," said Porthos.

"But I think I have it," said Athos.
"Don't you say, D'Artagnan, that it is the queen who has made choice of the convent for her?"

"I believe so, at least."

"Well," said Aramis, "I take upon myself to obtain intelligence of her."

"You, Aramis!" cried the three friends. "How?"

"By the queen's almoner, with whom I am very intimately acquainted," said
Aramis, coloring.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Inn of the Red Dovecote.

THE king, although scarcely arrived, who was in such haste to face the enemy, and who,
with more reason than the cardinal, showed his hatred for Buckingham, commanded an attack to be made to drive the English from the Isle of Re. Afterward the siege of La
Rochelle should be pressed.

The attack succeeded. The English, beaten in all the rencounters and defeated in the passage of L'Île de Loix, were obliged to re-embark, leaving on the field of battle 2,000 men.

An envoy of the Duke of Buckingham named Montague was taken, and proof was obtained of a league between the empire, Spain, England and Lorraine.

If the league which threatened France triumphed all the cardinal's influence would be lost. Spanish policy and Austrian policy would have their representatives in the cabinet of the Louvre, where they had as yet but partisans, and he, Richelieu, the French minister, the national minister, would be ruined. The king, who, while obey-ing him like a child, hated him as a child hates his master, would abandon him to the personal vengeance of monsieur and the queen. He would then be lost, and France, perhaps, with him.
All this must be guarded against.

Thus, couriers and spies, becoming every instant more numerous, succeeded each other day and night in the little house of the bridge of La Pierre, in which the cardinal had established his residence. Sometimes the cardinal held conferences elsewhere.

The musketeers, who had not much to do with the siege, were not under very strict orders and led a joyous life.

Now, one evening when D'Artagnan, who was in the trenches, was not able to accompany them, Athos, Porthos and Aramis, mounted upon their battle steeds, were returning from an inn

cellent chimney.

"I have this, monsieur," said he.
"That will do," replied the cardinal.
"Come in, gentlemen, and be kind enough to wait for me. I shall not be more than half an hour." And he went upstairs.

It was evident that, without suspecting it and actuated solely by their chivalric and adventurous character, our three friends had just rendered a service to some one the cardinal honored with his particular protection.

Porthos and Aramis placed themselves at the table and began to play at dice. Athos walked about in a contemplative mood.

While thinking and walking Athos passed and repassed before the pipe of the stove, broken in half, the other extremity of which passed into the upper chamber, and every time he passed he heard a murmur of words, which at length fixed his attention.
He made a sign to his friends to be silent and listen.

"Listen, milady," said the cardinal.
"the affair is important. Sit down and let us talk it over. A small vessel with an English crew, whose captain is mine, awaits you at the mouth of the Charente at Fort de la Pointe. He will set sail tomorrow morning. You will allow me to leave first tonight and half an hour after you can go away in your turn.

"You will go to London. When arrived in London you will seek Buckingnam."

"I must beg your eminence to observe," said milady, "that since the affair of the studs his grace has been very mistrustful of me."

"Well, this time," said the cardinal,
"it is not the question to steal his confidence, but to present yourself frankly and loyally as a negotiator. You will go to Buckingham on my part, and you will tell him I am acquainted with all the preparations he has made, but that they give me no uneasiness since, at the first step he takes, I will ruin
the queen. I have the proofs."

"I must be able to present these proofs to his appreciation."

"Without doubt; and you will tell him I will publish the account of Bois-Robert and of the Marquis de Beautrou upon the interview which the duke had at the residence of Mme. la Connetable with the queen, on the evening
Mme. la Connetable gave a masked fete."

"Very well, monseigneur."

"His coming into and going out of the palace on the night when he introduced himself in the character of an Italian fortune teller."

"Is that all, monseigneur?"

"Tell him also that I am acquainted with all the details of the adventure at Amiens; that I will have a little romance made of it, wittily turned, with a plan of the garden and portraits of the principal actors in that nocturnal romance."

The case is hopeless when you find a vacuum where there should be brains.

It is difficult to keep up with crazy and erratic people, so it is a fortunate thing that it isn't at all necessary.

But sometimes a competent person doesn't like to compete, but wants to be the whole show himself.

It is a lot easier to lose a desirable thing honestly than it is to gain it.

Simple Faith.

Oh, for an hour of trustfulness
As when you were a child;
You often murmur to yourself
When you are talking wild.
If you could but the words accept
As from your father's lips!
When you were but a little lad
You got such friendly tips!

But hold before you make complaint
About your present doubt.
Take heed unto yourself a bit
And see how it works out.
You hear a politician talk
Who wants your vote to win.
You know he has an ax to grind,
And still you take it in.

A fellow comes along and says:
"I have a mining claim,
And it will surely make you rich
If you will buy the same.
At least take just a little stock."
And so you plank down cash
For paper that is printed well,
But what is really trash.

You think you have not trusting faith
As when you were but four,
But if you will investigate
You'll see that you have more.
While it is true, as you declare,
You were confusing then,
You were not taking money that
You couldn't pass again.

BUTTON MAKING.

This is an Occupation That Calls For No Special Skill.

Buttons have an irresistible fascination in these days for the clever home dressmaker, for they put within her reach a practically infinite number of effective touches for her frocks which will take from her very little in the way of either time or money.

A pretty button can be made by first covering the padded mold with white silk and putting over this two thicknesses of silver gauze decorated with a little cluster of steel beads—in the center—from which radiate half a dozen or more loops of reseda green chenille. Narrow shaded ribbon can be woven into a charming button cover. A foundation should be cut from white silk. On this lay short lengths of the ribbon, the edges touching, and sew the ends securely. Then, with a needle threaded with ribbon, darn in the reverse pieces. If liked a tiny frill made of slightly gathered ribbon may be sewed around the edge of the button.

Motifs cut from lace which has passed its days of usefulness in the ordinary way can do their part toward making fancy buttons. A small daisy pattern tacked to white silk and worked over in satin stitch in any color preferred with a few French knots added will make an embroidered button that is decidedly expensive in appearance. On cloth or velvet a button covered with velvet, and trimmed with a fine braid in a fancy mixture of colors may be used. The braid can be knotted in the center and radiate toward the outer rim, where the separate bits should be connected by a single strand of the braid, with knots to keep all in place.

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

Corn Souffle.—Green corn and cheese souffle is little known, possibly, to most housekeepers, but its acquaintance is worth making. Have ready a cupful of corn cut from the cob, a cupful of grated American cheese, a tablespoonful or two of minced green pepper, three eggs, a tablespoonful of butter, half a cupful of flour, two cupfuls of milk and half a teaspoonful of salt. Melt the butter and cook the pepper soft in it. Make a sauce with the flour, milk, butter and salt. Beat the eggs separately, turn the yolks into the sauce, stir in the corn and fold in the whites. Turn into a buttered dish and bake in a moderate oven about half an hour.

Whitefish Fritters.—When you have any cold whitefish on hand you can make a very tasty dish in this way: To a cupful of the fish flaked up fine add half a cupful of mashed potatoes, half a cupful of grated breadcrumbs, half a cupful of cream, the beaten yolks of two eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Mix well together and then make into oblong shapes and flatten on both sides. Beat the whites of the two eggs and dip the cakes in this, then into breadcrumbs, and fry a nice brown in bacon fat or vegetable oil. Serve at once, garnished with parsley.

Sliced Peaches.—Four pounds of peaches, one cupful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one tablespoonful of cloves, three pounds of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of red pepper. Boil the sugar and the vinegar. Scald the peaches, remove the skins and cook

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

Floral Booth a Novel Feature For Church Bazaar.

CHILDREN DANCE AT FAIR.

No Matter How Elaborate Your Fall Blouse May Be, You Must Call It a Shirt—White Satin the Favorite Material to Use For This Garment.

My Dear Elsa—I think I can supply you with a beautiful new idea to carry out in the bazaar you are getting up for the benefit of your country church. In the fall you will have lots of autumn flowers, so a floral fortune telling booth will be quite within your resources.

The setting that you will need for the flower fortune booth is a tent or arbor or a screened off section among the trees, lined with greenery. Simple paper muslin stretched from tree to tree will answer the purpose charmingly and cost but a trifle. A bower of vines should form an approach, and the entrance may be screened so that no one may look in upon the venture—some person who is consulting her fate.

Within the bower there should be a long table showing all along its length little boxes or trays filled with damp sand, covered over with moss and stuck with tiny sprays of autumn flowers. In the center should be a very large bowl filled with scented water.

Fortune telling patrons have the choice of three ways in which their future may be revealed and character read. There is the fortune of single blossoms, there is the fortune of bunches of flowers, and there is the fortune of the scented water. Of course in all three instances the method of telling the fortune is the same, but the appearance of the work is changed, and there are lots of people who will want their fate foretold all three ways.

Your fortune teller will have to learn by heart the meaning of every flower, grass and leaf that she is using, which knowledge may be found in most books on floral lore or else—which is the clumsier but safer way—to the small notes to the stems of the different kinds of flowers and consult these. She must be glib of tongue and be able to make the interpretations sound convincing and mysterious.

The patron picks out from the assortment any flower that appeals to him and hands it to the fortune teller. If he chooses a bouquet he has the second method and a little more variety in the telling. In the fortune of scented water the fortune teller takes from a boxful of dried petals a handful of different kinds and sets them afloat on the water in the big bowl, at the same time fanning them so well as to scatter them over the surface. When the water has been sufficiently disturbed to cause a good deal of commotion among the petals and to mix them thoroughly she stops fanning and allows them to come to rest. Those that stop on the side near the one awaiting his fate are the ones which foretell his future.

Your fortune teller may be gowned in a rustic fashion, but I think at least

Hundreds of people gladly testify to the wonderful curative powers of the famous fruit medicine, "Fruit-a-tives". To those now suffering with Indigestion, Dyspepsia or other Stomach Troubles, this letter of Mr. Stirling, the well known real estate operator of Western Ontario, shows the way to a speedy and certain cure.

Although I have, in past, suffered agony with Dyspepsia, I am now in perfect health. "Fruit-a-tives" accomplished the desired result."

thing to wear with your new fall tailor made, and veil it with chiffon if you would be exactly up to the minute. This chiffon overshirt is always laid in tucks or plaits. Gathers are completely out of fashion. But the plaits are not narrow pin affairs, either. They are one, two or even three inches broad, three of these broad plaits set close together often covering the space between armhole and front opening.

The plaits are stitched all the way down and are not intended to add fullness across the bust. This is effected by a clever slanting cut, which seems to be the secret of the French blouse maker. The shirts, of course, have long sleeves and a long shoulder line. The top of the shirt and upper sleeve are cut kimono fashion, and a diamond shaped gusset is inserted underneath where the arm joins the shoulder. Then the long straight sleeve is attached to the upper kimono sleeve, and its lower edge is slashed and fastened with hooks and eyes, so that the fit around the wrist is trim and neat.

These satin waists are exquisitely dainty, but they soil mighty soon, and the average laundress does not do them up with any credit to her skill. This is the way I wash my new shirt: I lay it in soft water and suds of pure white soap. Now, don't rub the satin, but souce it up and down in several cool waters after the first immersion. Iron the shirt when almost dry with a not too hot iron, using a bit of thin muslin between the satin and the iron. So only will you save the luster and texture of a white satin shirt.

I have just seen an ad. in the paper offering at one of the big shops a bargain in white satin, so I'll bid you adieu and risk my life in the bargain crowd. Yours devotedly, MABEL.

Men's Card Prizes.

Prizes for card parties are easily chosen for women, but for a man's prize there is usually some difficulty in selection. A paper cutter is generally acceptable, and one can now be had for a very moderate sum, just 35 cents, which is excellent for this purpose. It shows a Japanese warrior in full armor, mounted on horseback, carved as the handle of a good sized paper knife. The knife itself is made of bone. This is stained a brownish tint, which takes off the crude appearance. Another paper cutter, suitable for a "booby prize," is of wood and shows a tiny surface a tiny monkey which is reaching up for two apples just out of his reach. This one is but 10 cents.

Needlework Notes.

Girls with an appreciation for the artistic are outlining the designs at the ends of pretty chiffon scarfs with pearl beads and crystal bangles and are thus securing remarkably fine effects.

Luncheon cloths or between meal cloths of color are gaining in favor, and no material is more popular for novel ones at present than dress linens. These are often embroidered in simple designs.

There is a little pincushion just out that is made with a wrist strap to fasten snugly on the left arm while one is doing dressmaking. Its usefulness is evident, and it could easily be made at home by a handy woman.

side stops running and grows down to come to rest. Those that stop on the side near the one awaiting his fate are the ones which foretell his future.

Your fortune teller may be gorged in a rustic fashion, but I think an eastern costume is more effective, but if you have any trouble in getting the eastern garb, why, have the girl wear a simple unbound robe of some thin white material with a crown of autumn leaves on her flowing hair.

A pretty side play at the fair is to have a group of small children give a dance in front of the booth at regular intervals. This attracts the crowd. These youngsters should be dressed as elves and fairies or representing different flowers.

Now I know you want a hint or two about the autumn styles. My dear Elsa, as you value your reputation as a modish woman, don't call your blouse a blouse, no matter how elaborate it may be, but speak of it as a shirt, and a white satin "shirt" is the correct

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine, and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 837 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money I can send you the book, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

- 1-Pain in the back.
- 2-Too frequent desire to urinate.
- 3-Burning or obstruction of urine.
- 4-Pain or soreness in the bladder.
- 5-Prostatic trouble.
- 6-Gas or pain in the stomach.
- 7-General debility, weakness, dizziness.
- 8-Pain or soreness under right rib.
- 9-Swelling in any part of the body.

The Municipal Elections.

Who will be in the mayoralty contest for the year 1913? This is the question being by some of the electors these days, but there is very little gossip going on concerning the municipal elections. The pot, as yet, has not even commenced to simmer. However, it is generally understood, and in fact it has been the custom that the mayor be given a two year term. When asked by a representative of The Express as to whether he would be in the field again, Mayor Waller replied, "if the people want me as their mayor for 1913, I am quite willing." As to the gentlemen who will serve the town as aldermen for the year 1913, it may be considered a good guess that the present representatives will all be in the field again. There have been some hints thrown out that considerable new blood will this year be introduced. In the school board also there is a probability that some new men will be in the field.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

W. C. T. U.

The Ontario W. C. T. U. has been holding its convention just recently in Renfrew and it is interesting to notice some of the resolutions presented by the Committee on Resolutions. One of these sounded a word of warning to any political party desiring the support of the temperance people, as to the inadvisability of putting up for election candidates, whose past record showed clearly that they were not really in sympathy with the temperance cause despite any pre-election promises they might make to that effect. Unfortunately for the temperance cause, the members of the W. C. T. U., do not, as yet, belong to the enfranchised class, or doubtless, this warning would have far greater effect than can be hoped for at present. Another interesting resolution presented was in regard to the changes needed in the Criminal Code, for the W. C. T. U. is actively interested in all social and moral reform measures. This resolution urged the necessity of more stringent laws in regard to "The presentation of plays that degrade the moral tone of the community and deprave the youth of our land."

FOR CONSTIPATION

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Cures.

The active medicinal ingredient of Rexall Orderlies which is odorless, tasteless and colorless is a comparatively new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a perfect bowel regulator,
intestinal invigorator and strengthener.
Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeable-ness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they act to overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action.

We will refund your money without argument if they do not do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c. and 10c.
